

Leading Across the Generations

Strategies for Employee Engagement and Leadership Development

Join business leaders from across industries for an interactive discussion on Leading across Generations facilitated by Barbara E Miller, President of Artemis Management.

There are four generations in the workplace: Seniors, Boomers, Gen X and Millennials. Each generation has different values, goals, and work styles that make team work and optimum organization performance more challenging than ever. Learn how to bridge the generation gap and develop systems to appeal to each generation: recruitment, retention, performance management and training.

- Are you prepared to work with Millennials who seek collaboration and flexibility?
- Are you ready for them to challenge existing policies and practices?
- How can you make jobs meaningful enough to retain Millennials?
- What generation do you belong to?
- Can you lead those who are from other generations effectively?
- Does your human resource department understand how to develop systems and policies to attract and retain a multi-generational workforce?

Barbara Miller has thirty years of experience consulting to private, public and non-profit organizations. Her recent clients include: Stanford University, HSBC, Accenture, Hewlett Packard, U.C. Berkeley, Twitter, The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, The Ford Foundation, Intel, Dominican University, Big Brothers Big Sisters, Kaiser Permanente, Yerba Buena Center for the Arts. Ms. Miller specializes in leadership development, executive and managerial coaching, team building and organization change strategies. Barbara's consulting work has included helping organizations to plan strategically, manage change, build teamwork, re-organize workflow and reporting relationships to improve productivity, downsize and merge.

Wednesday, March 14, 2012

8:30 – 10:00 am

Marin County Office of Education

Conference Center

1111 Las Gallinas

San Rafael, CA 94903

No cost to participate

Please RSVP to

Caran Cuneo

CCuneo@marincounty.org

with your business name
and contact information.