

Attention Contractors & Construction Workers

Get the Competitive Edge

Upgrade your tool box with energy efficiency training to put you ahead of the competition.

New regulations and stimulus financing are putting home energy audits and retrofits on the fast track.

If you are a contractor, an unemployed or underemployed construction worker, or a building professional looking for training in green building practices, energy auditing or whole home retrofitting, you may be eligible for retraining.

Did you know that "Green Jobs" are the latest, upcoming jobs in America? President Obama allocated billions of dollars toward the creation of these jobs and you have the opportunity to participate in FREE or LOW COST training that will prepare you for the future. The residential energy efficiency sector is a new, and fast growing industry.

The State of California has provided funding for people in need of retraining through the Workforce Investment Boards and Energy Commission. The re-training is meant to prepare workers for the new "green economy."

Training will lead to certifications as Certified Green Building Professional, Water Efficient Landscaper, Energy Auditor and others. All of these professions deal with residential building efficiency and offer the chance to expand your business opportunities in the energy efficiency sector.
